

A Business Continuity Case Study

Leading House Builder

The Challenge

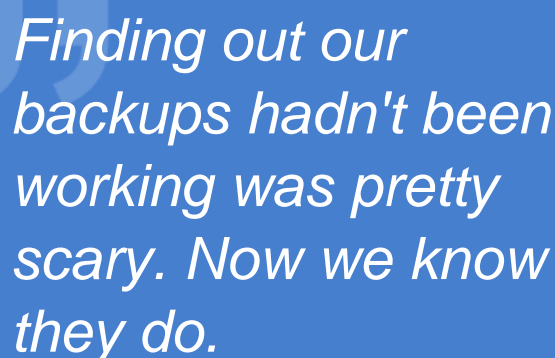

The company had been comfortable with their backup solution. Then they tried to do a test restore. The backups hadn't been working for months.

They needed a new solution fast.

The Solution

Softwerx discussed the options with the company and they realised that disaster recovery had come a long way. The idea of a business continuity solution that would get them up and running in a matter of minutes rather than hours or days was extremely attractive.

They chose to go with Databarracks business continuity.

Finding out our backups hadn't been working was pretty scary. Now we know they do.

The Outcome

The new solution provides the company with a secure and safe backup solution, including regular reports to prove everything is working as it should.

They know that not only are their backups secure, but they have a complete managed service which will get their business back on it's feet whether they face a physical disaster like fire or flood, or a cyber attack.
