

An Email Security Case Study

Commercial Appliance Manufacturer

The Challenge

The management team had a very real scare. One of senior execs was the subject of a phishing scam which nearly succeeded, fortunately she picked the phone up to check with the bank before sending any details. The business decided they couldn't afford to be lucky again. They needed to be sure.

To protect their staff and their business they needed a robust email security solution.

The Solution

The business found Mimecast's targeted threat protection solution, but they lacked the inhouse skills and experience to deploy it effectively.

Mimecast recommended Softwerx, who provided the solution across 270 email accounts inside three weeks.

We learnt a lot in a short space of time. We didn't need to learn more - Softwerx had it covered.

The Outcome

The company bought peace of mind. They knew that a more susceptible staff member was unlikely to get a similar scam message.

As well as the security benefits the system also blocks far more obvious scammers and spammers saving staff significant time and energy in filtering through and deleting emails.